CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES

South, Free and Baptist Churches Present Special Programs at Sunday Services. Rite of Baptism Administered.

The annual Children's day exercises were held at the South and Free churches on Sunday when the rite of baptism was administered, and the morning service was given over to the little people. At the Baptist church the children's concert was held in the evening at half past seven.

South Church

The service at the South church was in charge of the pastor, Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, and consisted of readings and songs by the children of the church school. The baptismal procession entered the church at 11:15 and the following children were baptized:

FLAG DAY EXERCISES

Dr. Claude M. Fuess Gives Stirring Address at Meeting Held Under Auspices of Gen. William F. Bartlett W. R. C.

In accordance with the governor's proclamation exercises appropriate to Flag Day with music and a stirring patriotic address by Dr. Claude M. Fuess were held Tuesday evening in the Town hall under the auspices of the Gen. Wm. F. Bartlett Woman's Relief Corps. Members of the G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps, Sons of Veterans, and Woman's Camp Auxiliary, as well as a large delegation from the American Legion which postponed its regular business meeting till a later hour, for the purpose of attending the exercises, made up the comparatively small audience.

Mrs. Carrie Buchan, patriotic instructor of the corps, had charge of the

Correction in Punchard Alumni Notes

In the issue of the Townsman of June 3, the name of Miss Charlotte O. Bailey was given among those of the first class which entered Punchard in 1856. It has since been learned that Miss Bailey died on March 21, 1921.

The death of Mrs. Ezra H. Valpey on Tuesday of this week leaves but two of the girls who graduated in 1859; Miss Charlotte Helen Abbott of this town and Miss Laura A. Bailey of North Andover. So far as is known, William F. Merrill is the only other survivor.

Local Mount Holyoke Alumnae Complete Campaign

Mount Holyoke College alumnae of Andover are rejoicing over the fact that their town is one of the sixty to go "over the top" in the Mount Holyoke Endowment Campaign, according to figures given out at South Hadley, Mass., on Commencement Day. There are twelve alumnae of Mount Holyoke in Andover, each of whom was asked to raise an individual quota of $305. The community quota was $3660. Under the able chairmanship of Delight W. Hall, of the Class of 1905, the alumnae set to with a will, and in spite of depressing business conditions raised $4115, or 121% of the quota. The greater part of the money pledged is to be raised over a period of five years; but the local committee has wired the College that it can count on this amount.

PHILLIPS COMMENCEMENT

Exercises Held Under Perfect Weather Conditions. Andover Boys Receive Honors and Prizes. 149 in Graduating Class.

Baccalaureate Sermon

The Baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Phillips Academy was preached in the Stone chapel Sunday afternoon by Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, D.D., of Brooklyn, N. Y. He read as a scripture lesson the story of Jacob's wrestling with the angel and preached from Genesis 25:27, "And the boys grew."

Just before the service a piano and organ recital was given by Mrs. John C. Angus and Carl F. Pflaetche.

The music by the choir consisted of the "Gloria in Excelsis" from Gounod's second mass and "Dominus Salvum Fac" under the leadership of Mr. Pflaetche. The "Hymn of the Netherlands" was sung as a processional as the senior class entered.

Dr. Boynton spoke as follows:

Young gentlemen of the graduating class: This hour belongs to us, and the text of the hour is found in the 25th chapter of the Book of Genesis, a portion of the 27th verse—"And the boys grew."

Certainly. Of course they grew. They grew upon that far-away horizon of the world, when earth was nearer heaven than now; but they grew now just the same as then. To forget this shining fact makes always an unsuccessful parent; it makes a meager minister; it makes a limited teacher, and if the boy himself either forgets or ignores it, God pity him.

We are looking back for a moment to the very beginnings of the history of the world, to the two young men concerning whom the statement is made that they grew. Let us have a look at each of them.

Esau was very fond of hunting. He was a young man who believed thoroughly in the amenities of life. He wanted to have plenty of cattle about him, and his domestic affairs always in evidence in one way and another. But beyond that he had no high ambitions; he had no noble resolves; he had no wide outlook upon life. He was a popular fellow too. What a figure he would have cut in a chafing-dish party in days like these, making Welsh rabbits, for it was said that the savory meat which he was able to prepare was so fine that even his father declared that nobody in the family could use the chafing dish—they called it the skillet—as Esau could. He was one of those young men who was an opportunist. He believed in accepting the situation as he found it, and dealing with it, therefore, thoughtlessly.

One day he was very hungry for bread, and he met his brother Jacob who had bread enough and to spare, and he actually sold his birthright for a biscuit. He went out into life with nothing except the prudent view, the thing which was immediately surrounding him. He cared not at all for high ideals, for noble realizations, or in any particular way counting one in the world. He was just an ordinary, good-natured clothopper. Browning would have called him a finished and a finite clod, untroubled by a spark. If he had been an automobile we should have said that the trouble was that his spark plug was dead.

Now, Jacob, his brother, was a different character. He was not nearly so generous by nature as Esau was, in fact he was contemptibly mean in the morning of his life, and the thing he had to wrestle with in his life beyond anything else was his own innate stinginess. It was terribly mean for him to buy the birthright for a mere biscuit. It was meaner still for him to masquerade and go to his old father and snatch the blessing that belonged to Esau away from him and appropriate it to himself. He was not altogether aboundingly generous with his father. Whenever he had

In the selection of his players, David W. Griffith, the master of screen producers, has universally used the most excellent care, so as to assure his production of the most faithful interpretations. No better example of his excellent judgment in the choice of the interpreters for the screen lovers could be cited than in the players he presents in his latest masterpiece, "The Love Flower," which United Artists release will be the feature at the Colonial Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, June 20-21.

Among the players in this unusually dramatic love story of the South Sea Islands are none other than Richard Barthelmess, Carol Dempster, George MacQuarrie, Anders Randolph, Florence Short, Crawford Kent, Adolphe Lestina, William James and Jack Manning.

Thus it is with each and every character that Mr. Griffith has chosen for this production. Each chosen with utmost care for just the specific character to be portrayed and each playing his or her part in a most admirable manner, giving the production that added qualification of perfection of character interpretation, which, added to the masterful manner in which the story is revealed through the productive genius of Mr. Griffith, makes this, his latest picture, one of the outstanding features of the past year.

The management of the Colonial Theatre takes great pride in being able to offer this masterpiece at this time, and will present with this production an excellent musical program and well-rounded performance of interesting short reels.

Gigantic Feature is Added to Big Circus

With Europe's biggest trained animal show as one of many splendid features, the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows will exhibit afternoon and night at Lowell, Friday, June 24th.

This marvel circus of 1921 offers the greatest congress of attractions in history. Without eliminating any of the thousand thrills produced by hundreds of the most skillful men and women performers, the Ringling Brothers have added, without additional charge, the most sensational of wild beast displays. Not only will you see the artists who occupy the three rings, five stages, the great hippodrome track and the aerial rigging in the tent, but four spacious steel arenas filled with wild beasts as well.

Tigers riding peacefully on the backs of elephants, black-maned African lions springing to and from galloping horses, great troupes of polar bears walking ropes or playing at see-saw, leopards jumping through hoops of fire—these are some of the marvelous things that these wonderful animals do. While these beautiful creatures are under absolute control, they are presented only in great arenas of steel. Elsewhere in the main tent you will see camels performing much after the fashion of horses—an act never before presented anywhere. There are five troupes of trained seals, whole herds of remarkable dogs, monkeys, pigs and pigeons. Twenty-six elephants will perform at one time. Others will do tricks at the top of high pedestals and others circle the entire tent, kicking footballs as they go. Splendid groups of trained stallions, Shetlands and menage horses form another feature. Aside from the dumb actors are fully 600 men and women stars, and nearly 100 clowns. A gorgeous tournament opens the program. The menagerie, which is entirely separate from the animals used in the circus performance, is the biggest ever traveled.

exercises and presided at the meeting. Among those seated on the platform with her, were John Curran, Commander of Needham Post, G. A. P. of Lawrence; Bartlett H. Hayes, Commander of Andover Post, American Legion; selectmen Charles Bowman and Andrew McTernan; Charles Holt, commander of the Sons of Veterans; Mrs. Eleanor Early, president of the Camp Auxiliary; and Dr. Claude M. Fuess, who was the speaker of the evening.

The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Frank M. Smith, vice-president of W. R. C., and prayer was offered by Rev. C. W. Henry of Christ church. Miss Sadie Hobbs read the Governor's proclamation and the pledge to the flag was given by the audience. Two readings were given by Miss Mildred Towler. Miss Belle Bowman sang, "Our God, Our Country and Our Flag," and "Mother Dear," a song written by an American soldier in France and dedicated to the mothers of America. Miss Bowman was warmly applauded and generously responded with encores. Miss Emily Walker was her accompanist.

John Buss whose name had a place on the program failed to put in an appearance.

The subject of Dr. Fuess' address was "The American Flag as We Know It." Although the different colonies had various devices, an emblem of unity was needed, and in June 1777 the American Congress, assembled in Independence hall in Philadelphia, issued a proclamation that brought into being the flag with its thirteen stripes of alternating red and white and thirteen stars on a field of blue. This flag was displayed by John Paul Jones on his ship the Ranger, and it was with Washington at Brandywine and Germantown and waved triumphant at Saratoga. This same flag with the additional stars for the new states guided our navy into the harbors of Santiago and Manila, was unfurled by Peary at the frozen pole, and waved with those of our allies across the sea during the World War. It is the emblem of a great, a mighty nation.

Dr. Fuess said that there were three qualities in the nation which must be maintained if the flag is to be kept worthy of respect. First of all the flag stands for justice and a "square deal" wherever it flies. There should be no room for race prejudice, class antagonism, no oppression of the poor, no unjust attacks on the rich, and no special privileges. The second quality is honesty, honesty of purpose before the world, with no deceptive diplomacy or political chicanery. The flag should also be the emblem of unselfishness, of generous and benevolent aims with no purpose of self-aggrandizement. It is our privilege to lead other nations and to offer an example of altruism and self-forgetfulness.

The speaker recounted briefly the stories of Barbara Freitchie and Philip Nolan "the man without a country," and urged that the flag be defended with the spirit of Barbara Freitchie and cherished with the ardor of the heartbroken Philip Nolan, and that it be our function to see that confidence is not misplaced in this emblem of our nation which is still a beacon of hope for suffering humanity.

Before the exercises the Essex County Training School band gave a concert in front of the town hall and also rendered several selections during the exercises.

An offering was taken which amounted to $21.00, which will be divided between the Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

1917 Mrs. George Bateson
1918 Miss Bertha Ladd and Miss Charlotte Keith
1919 Miss Marion Hill and Miss Eunice Lovejoy
1920 Miss Rita Adams and Miss Mary Robertson

Great interest in the reunion is being shown, and there promises to be a large gathering of alumni of the school. The toastmaster of the evening will be Dr. Frederic Palmer of Cambridge, who for so many years was president of the Pynchard Trustees. The speakers will be Payson Smith of Boston, State Commissioner of Education; Prof. Frank R. Shipman of Atlanta Theological Seminary, who has been for many years a good friend of Pynchard; Principal Charles H. Eames of the Lowell Textile School, and Principal N. C. Hamblin of Pynchard.

To accommodate friends of Pynchard, who are not eligible to membership in the Alumni Association, it has been arranged to open the gallery of the Town Hall on the evening of the Banquet and Reunion, and tickets for seats there, at fifty cents each, are on sale. Anyone wishing to hear the speeches and the entertainment can do so by purchasing one of these tickets.

Parents of the members of the graduating class of the Pynchard High School may attend the banquet, whether or not they are members of the Alumni Association. Several of the fathers and mothers have expressed their interest in the reunion, and accordingly the committee in charge has planned to admit them to the hall on that night. They can secure tickets at $1.50 each from members of the committee, or from Miss Beatrice Poland in J. H. Playdon's store.

There are still some former members of the Pynchard School whose names are not on the address list of the Alumni Association. Invitations have been sent to all persons whose names and addresses are known to the Statistical secretary, but undoubtedly some were not reached in this manner. It is earnestly desired, however, that anyone who has been connected with the school, who has not received an official notice of the annual banquet and reunion, will nevertheless feel that he or she is invited.

All persons wishing to reserve tickets for the banquet on June 24th, must do so before June 22, as after that date positively no tickets can be sold. Don't delay too long in securing yours.

Christ Church School Picnic

The picnic of 1921 will be remembered as a great success. About 150 made up the group which gathered in front of the Parish House, on Saturday, June 11, with their lunch boxes in their hands. Three trucks, two of them most gen-

PHILLIPS COMMENCEMENT

an opportunity to grab for himself, especially in the morning of his life, Jacob was ready for the opportunity. But as he moved on it happened that there were higher powers which attracted him in his commonplace life, and he began, beneath the influence of those larger views which he possessed and those higher impulses which found their expression in his soul, to enter into the splendid fight with himself for his character. You know how it came out at the end. I read it in the afternoon lesson, about that wrestling match for his character, and about the determination of Jacob to secure for his own uplifted life qualities and powers which he discerned in him who was wrestling with him. You will not forget that wonderful conversation: And He said, "What is thy name?" He said, "My name is Jacob." And He said, "Thou shalt no more be called Jacob, for as a Prince of God thou hast conquered, and hath power over men."

He began so meager in his apparent possibilities, and by the power of a great strength that entered into his life he became, after the fight was finished, a prince of the Living God. Oh, when a fight begins within a man, he is worth something. God looks down from above, the Devil looks up from beneath, and he is left alone in the middle. Prolong that battle while thy life shall last; cease not from fighting till the life to come.

Now, as we look at these two contrasted characters, one of which was just simply a common clay-eater, and the other became by the strength of his own fighting with his own limitations and infirmity, a prince of God, let us notice two or three things which are absolutely essential for a vital and virile life. The first one is in evidence upon the very outset, and that is, a grip upon one's self, the grip upon one's self. Often when we are speaking to young about the grip upon themselves we begin and end with the struggle over the primitive qualities of their lives. The struggle is there, and every young man meets it. He knows perfectly well the voice which whispers to him, and says, "Lose not thyself, nor give thy passions sway; God gave them to thee under lock and key." Thank God the primitive instincts of our lives do not cover the entire range of our lives, and one must get his grip upon himself in the wider as well as in the immediate personal relationship of life. Sometimes he has not thought of the necessity of getting a grip upon himself in the wider relationships of his life. Much in his life is running loose and just flapping in the breeze, like the sheet of your sail when the boat is coming about.

You remember the story of the freshman who went to Harvard, where some of you probably will be next fall; and he was crossing the campus one day, and he had tucked down in his little freshman soul an aspiration to play upon the football team, and the captain of the team knew about it. He happened to be crossing the campus at the same time, and he met him, and he said "Good morning," and the freshman said it with very great deference, — oh, how a freshman will exercise his deference toward the captain of the baseball and the football team, — and he was deferential to him, and the captain of the team said to him, "Tommy, do you ever remember having done any one thing in your life just as well as you could?" Tommy looked him in the eye, and he said, "To tell the truth, Captain, I don't at this moment remember of having done any one thing in my life just as well as I could." "Well, you ought to begin if you are going to play football on the Harvard team, I will tell you that," and away he went, and the boy got his first real lesson in life of the absolute necessity of getting a good grip on himself if he was going to play football successfully. We do not help our Exeter brethren to gently bite the dust except we go to the contest with a very remarkable grip upon ourselves.

But this grip upon ourselves is quite independent of immediate realization. It is one of the fallacies of life that if one really gets a hold upon himself then the compound dividend begins immediately to be paid to him. That is not life. You do not get the grip on yourself for the sake of success anyway. If you understand yourself, you get your grip on yourself in the interests of character, and build up a character which will be strong enough because, of that grip to stand the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, if these be the portion of your life, and still hold its self-integrity and its self-respect.

I hope you boys love Robert Browning. You ought to make friends with him at once, and keep the friendship all through your life. While you are getting acquainted with him, remember this fact, which came out in his early manhood. His father was a rich man, so that Robert Browning did not need, in order to get his daily bread or his social fellowship, to put forth any persistent efforts himself, but he got the idea that just because his father was a rich man and had given him educational opportunity, that he ought to do the thing which he had set out to do, not by the grace of his father's wealth, but by the inherent and integral quality of his own character. And do you know that when he published his first book he could not get a single soul to buy it. They could not sell a copy of his poems, and after he had been writing poetry for thirty years, cheerfully and persistently, doing his level best every time, he wrote this line: "Ye British public, ye who love me not," and yet the time came when because of this grip upon himself which was stronger than any of the cyclones of life, he came to his own, and today people are whispering, "One of the greatest minds the world has known since Shakespeare's day," and the number of people in the world who put a half hitch upon their drooping spirits through one of his poems grows with every passing day.

Take the same truth in a little more commonplace illustration. You know the story about the New Bedford skipper, who had made a successful trip and had gotten a vessel full of whale oil. He had been so successful that the people who owned the ship thought he ought to have a better one and a bigger one so he could get more whale oil, so they fitted him out with a magnificent ship with every kind of convenience for catching whales and storing oil, conveniences he never had known of before; and he sailed away, everyone expecting he would return after a while from a most wonderful whaling voyage. He was gone for three years, and when he came back again the stockholders were all on the wharf to greet him. They came aboard his ship; they looked around; they did not see any oil here, there or elsewhere, and finally some one snubbed up to the old captain, who was a man of very few words, and asked him what sort of a trip he had had. And he turned, and the poet makes him say the words in his own fashion, to the effect that he had been sailing around for three years, and he had not seen a whale. "There is not a lick of oil on board, but we have had a darned good sail," and that "darned good sail" was simply the prelude to the next trip, through its discipline and power, when he should recover the losses of yesterday in the anticipated gains of tomorrow.

Believe me, the grip upon yourself, your whole self, is the first element in a real, vital life. And second is this, an appreciation of the gift of your world, — an appreciation of the gift of your world, because Esau and his world was very, very small. It was just simply buccolic in its environment, and Jacob's world kept growing larger and larger and larger and larger as the true elements that make up life ranged themselves in solid phalanx, and went against those deficiencies of character about which he knew until they drove them out of sight.

Just at present there is no question before your country, the American people, like the question of what is the appreciation of the American people today of the gift of the world. You find great newspapers, metropolitan newspapers, which will put at the head of the first page in glaring headlines day after day, "America First, America First." Their world is just as big as the commercial demands of America are. They will tell you that we have done a good deal for the other nations of the world, and we do not mean to stop now, but it is high time for America to begin to take care of herself. That is what they will say. America first. Well, is that the gift of your world, or have you risen to something of the appreciation even of old Jacob of the relationships of those great principles of life which cannot be bounded even by the blessed Stars and Stripes, but which reach around the whole world?

The outcome of the war, young gentlemen, has been this: That it has put our young country, — and never forget that we are the kiddie among the nations of the world, we have only pretended to enter into internationalism since the Spanish War, — this war has put America in the eye of the world as she never has been before, only now it is a questioning eye. If you have traveled abroad in the last year or two, you will find that the old world is just like an old, decrepit man leaning upon the shoulders of a young adolescent boy called America, and wondering whether America is going to duck and let the old man down, or whether he is going to stand in the sturdy manhood of young impressionability and keep the old world up. That is the question which is before America today, the gift of our world, how large we are. We have half of the gold of the world in our American vaults tonight. We have one-third of all the diamonds in the world glistening in the ears and on the bosoms of our American women. And is this the time for us as a nation, — if you are going to speak simply commercially, — is this the time for us as a nation to hug our own goods in selfishness, and make our plans simply for our own country irrespective of the rest of the world? So many people are saying: We know it is a needy world; we are fortunate here in America; we are perfectly willing to give the poor dog a bone. Yes, but you are cutting the tenderloin off the bone before you toss it to him.

That is the danger of our American life today, that we shall come to believe in a restricted gift of this world of ours, and written all over that gift only one name, and that America, America. Nobody is such a fool as to believe that any nation has not some responsibilities toward itself; but let us not be so foolish as to think that those responsibilities toward ourselves are to be our all-consuming responsibilities in these days, that we must not disarm because it will disturb the gentlemen who are engaged in the ammunition business. That is logic. How great is your world? What do you think about the gift of it? Does it summon you to any heroism? Does it demand of you any courage? Does it wait for the expression of the nobler sacrifices in the interests of the great, round world of which we are a part, the knowledge of which has come to us so recently that there are many, many citizens in the United States who have had no conception of it? Yet we have been sending our students abroad to study in the great universities of the old world. We have sent them to Germany, and that is fine; we have sent them to England, and that is fine; we have sent them to France, and that is fine, until the notion has almost prevailed that there is no other place in the world to send our students for foreign study except these great nations.

Well, what about Japan? What about China? China has universities today where an American student can accumulate his information and his experience quite as advantageously as he can secure it in France or in England or in Germany. Why? We have just learned that the world is one, and that the interests of one portion of the world affect the interests of all, and that any nation today that aspires to be a hermit nation and take as its slogan for example America first, has put the cart before the horse. Its idea of the gift of the world is restricted.

But one thing more, a third element of a virile life is not only the grip upon one's self, the increasing appreciation of the gift of the world into which we have come, but in the third place it is a personal experience of the grace of God.

Now, the difference between Esau and Jacob was fundamentally this: Esau had no use for God, and no regard for Him in any way, shape or manner. Jacob found that those higher influences which touched his life and gave him grace to battle had their origin in the heart of the Eternal. Did you read that speech of Vice-President Coolidge the other day — a Massachusetts man, by the way — in which he gave it as his judgment, as a great publicist and statesman, that the supreme need of America today was a new attitude toward religion? Did you read that word of Lloyd George, published perhaps six months ago, in which he said that England needed more than anything else a man who was a sort of a cross between a John Wesley and a General Booth to go up and down England calling the attention of the people back again to religion? Did you hear that word of Herbert Hoover, uttered in New York perhaps six months ago, Herbert Hoover who knows our country probably as well if not better than any public man we have, that the need of America just now was a new respect for and appreciation of religion?

In one of our great quarterlies just two or three days ago there was published by one of the best-known editors in the world a statement with relation to Christianity at the present time, what had happened to it, and what its need was, and he said this, which was mightily suggestive: That it seemed to him that one of the things which had troubled Christianity was that in recent years it had come to be made predominantly the possession of the older people, dealing with the principles of resignation, for example, and those others which are necessary in order to make one square with the natural changes of on-going life. And he called attention to the fact that Christianity was a religion for the young people, that its Founder was young.

You remember Disraeli said the history of heroes is the history of youth, and that it was time not to disregard those splendid principles of resignation which are in the blessed Gospel, but to return to those principles of resolution which are also there, and which always in the history of the world find their noblest expression in the breasts of youth.

Who was it that won the Civil War? You see the old veterans now and then walking in the Memorial Day procession. They did not win the war. It was those veterans who when they were boys won the war. It was boys that won the Civil War. And who won this tremendous war out of which we have just now come? Boys won it, with their enthusiasm, with their heroism, with their self-forgetfulness. And who will bring the power of the religious life which is not decadent, but which is a bit in recession since the war, who will bring the power of the religious life back again to the fulness of its old-time strength? The youth of the world will bring it back, as the youth of China are bringing it back today with a passion never known there before, as some of the youths of America are doing.

Never think for a moment that religion is an option in a virile life. Never think of it as a static power, as so far away that you are put in unusual and unnatural relationships with the life you have to live in order to be the subject of it. Religion is courage; religion is eagerness; religion is loyalty; religion is resolution, and whenever you are putting your whole self hard against the task of your life, and are employing these Heaven-born agencies, you are being religious whether you realize it or not. And if you continue the strength of your mighty struggle, you will have the experience which Jacob had of a gradual revelation of the true sources of that power and strength and courage which you need every day for the conduct of your manly and of your virile life.

Henry James was writing to a friend of his once, — and it is significant because Henry James said it, — and he said this: "My friend, live by your soul, for life on any other theory turns out to be a cell." That is the lesson of the afternoon. That is the difference between Esau and Jacob. For Esau life turned out to be a cell because it was not based right. For Jacob, who lived increasingly by his soul, conquering himself in the name of the Most High, life turned out to be an influence which, percolating down through centuries has touched your life and mine, and made them finer and stronger.

Oh, it is a fine thing, young gentlemen, to grow. But the fearfulness of it shades off into the fineness of it when one has learned the relationships between his life and the life of the Most High, and has made it the choice purpose of his life to live in the large with the divine power, getting his grip upon himself, appreciating the

Don't Cover Up Taxes

In discussing the operation of the sales tax in Canada a student of tax problems in that country insists that one of the great advantages and most wonderful features of the Canadian sales tax is that the consumer is practically unaware that such a thing exists. Certain commentators on this viewpoint argue that this makes it a most inviting form of tax to inaugurate, particularly those who are advocates of forms of taxation to which the people are objecting here in the United States.

The writer wonders when the public is going to understand that it costs money to run the Government, and carry on all the activities which the public itself demands; that to ignore that phase of public improvement and development by burying it in one of a number of forms of taxation, to which the United States has resorted in the last fifty years, is simply camouflaging the whole situation with the ultimate result of increasing taxation, making a burden beyond that which the public can possibly stand. We are almost up to that place at the present time, and we can conceive of no reason for the unrest regarding the taxation problem that has, any foundation whatsoever comparable to the reason involved in the education which most of the present generation has—or rather, lack of education—in taxation problems.

The public needs more information as to why it is taxed, and what the tax is, rather than less, and any scheme of taxation designed to relieve the present system about which we all kick, but which we may well and wisely know about, which substitutes indirect, covered-up taxes, will be a step backward in the education of the public along taxation lines, of serious moment. The writer wishes that every tax in existence could be billed in its fair proportion definitely to every individual in the country, and it would not be long before many people who are now crying for all sorts of governmental activities would beg for quarter, and ask to be relieved, and do more work on their own account rather than turn it all over for the indefinite State to do.

Editorial Cinders

We should hardly want to be looked upon as taking advantage of a fellow when he is down, yet we cannot refrain from expressing our affection for the distinguished editor of the Poston Herald, in his hour of trial due to the strike of Boston compositors, in a manner not unlike that which he would use if the conditions were transposed, in connection with the baseball game.

Wedding

AMBYE—COOLIDGE

A very pretty but informal wedding took place in Ayer, June 10th, at one o'clock, when Miss Ethel Ruth Coolidge of Shawheen Village, Andover, formerly of 33 Linden Street, Arlington Heights) and C. Leroy Ambye also of Andover, and chauffeur for William M. Wood, were united in marriage by the Rev. William J. Kelley of the Congregational church of Ayer.

For nearly a month past, preparations were being made at "Twin Oaks" cottage, Sandy Pond, the summer home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Culver, for the coming event.

The living room which is in the Japanese style was artistically decorated. Boughs with blossoms of wisteria made by the bride covered the beamed ceiling, while huge bouquets of pond lilies added their charm. The home at Sandy Pond is a favorite spot of the bride's and hers was the first wedding to occur in that vicinity. Only relatives of the bride were present, the only attendant being Miss Doris Coolidge, sister of the bride, who held the rings, it being a double-ring ceremony.

Miss Coolidge was very popular at the pond and while many predicted a wedding in the fall, it was not until the auto carrying the bridal couple sped down the lane amid showers of confetti that the cottagers realize that something had been "put over on them."

Miss Coolidge, now Mrs. Ambye, was born at Arlington Heights and lived there until a year ago, when her parents moved to Shawheen Village, the model town made by William M. Wood the woolen king.

Miss Coolidge was a member of the Park Avenue Congregational church, Arlington Heights, where she took an active part in the choir and all the church activities.

She was prominent in dramatics and was a general favorite. She is a descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, and of the same family kin as that of Calvin Coolidge, but not a niece or cousin, as some of the papers have stated.

The bride was charming in her going-away gown of gray crepe de chine with stockings and shoes and gray velvet wrap of the same color and wearing a rose color crepe de chine hat trimmed with gray and carrying a huge bouquet of sweet peas. The young couple left for New York and after a short time will probably reside in Shawheen Village.

tion with a headline found in the Boston Herald on Tuesday morning. Referring to a desire for a new policy at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and criticizing in the supplementary headline, changes that may come to that institution, they were described as "undesired." We are at a loss to understand whether the use of this word may be attributed to the attempt of some long-ago printer now occupying an editorial position in the Boston Herald office, who thought he still knew how to set type; or whether it should be charged to the inspiration for the changes supposed to be taking place at Massachusetts Agricultural College, traceable in this case to the Bureau of Animal Industry.

It is difficult to get into the feeling of approval of such labor difficulty as that now known as the printers' strike. There is evidence that the workmen in this particular craft are not playing fair, even from the standpoint laid down by their own rules. When this situation develops, it does not take the public very long to pick the side it will support, and we are inclined to believe that the public has already picked the side of the employers in these issues that are now making most of us read an eight-page newspaper each morning instead of a twenty-page. It would not be so bad to read the eight-page newspaper if it were edited so that all the various important matters were properly covered, but when it resolves itself into a picking of long articles that can be easily put into forms, and important news matter is ignored, the public is not going to be very long satisfied. It looks as if the loser in this whole transaction would ultimately be the fellow who has not done as he agrees,—in this case the compositor and pressman.

There is nothing more firmly fixed in school traditions than the belief so often verified, that the most uncertain "surety" in connection with an Andover-Exeter contest is that the favorite will lose. The last two bouts between these two schools lend still further testimony of this sort. All the dope gave to Andover the advantage in the track meet; Exeter won. Again, all the dope gave to Exeter the advantage in the baseball game; Andover won. Hence the doubtful thing continues to be uncertain, and that is why these contests have become the classics of school-boy sport. The game last Saturday was a great credit to Coach Daly, and to the group of novices that he brought into the game, developed beyond what had been supposed possible when the season opened for Andover.

Free Church Picnic

One week from tomorrow, June 25, the annual picnic of the Free Church Sunday school will be held at Welch's Pond, Methuen. A large number of members and their friends have purchased tickets and it may be necessary to secure additional transportation.

Those who have not purchased tickets should do so at once, so that the committee may know how many to arrange for. Many prizes have been received for the long list of sports.

Should the weather be doubtful the church bell will toll at eight o'clock. If fair, the trucks will leave at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m.

New Aids to Regulate Traffic

A safety zone has recently been painted on the roadway for the protection of passengers alighting from electric cars in front of the town house. A line has also been painted for the regulation of traffic at the corner of School and Central streets, where there have been several accidents and where the silent policeman has repeatedly been knocked over, the last time being carried twenty-five feet from its original position.

"Speed limit fifteen miles an hour" will soon appear in white paint on the roadway just the other side of Andover hill as a reminder to motorists approaching Andover center.

These aids to regulating traffic have been made by Chief of Police Frank M. Smith and other signs and traffic lines will be added gradually.

Farther Lights Hold Gentlemen's Night

There was a large gathering in the vestry of the Baptist church Monday evening, when the members of the Farther Lights Society observed gentlemen's night.

The first part of the evening's program consisted of a series of stunts which created much amusement. This was followed by an entertainment of readings by Mrs. John R. Bacon, and instrumental numbers by Miss Jane Wetterberg and Miss Hattie McCoubrie. The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Bacon and Mrs. Clare Norton. Bountiful refreshments were served by a committee comprising Mrs. Jesse Billington and Misses Jane Wetterberg and Isabel Michelin.

Mother-Daughter Night

The Margaret Slattery class of the Free church held its third annual Mother-Daughter night in the parish house last Friday night, and seventy-five enjoyed the festivities.

At 7:30 a bountiful supper was served and the menu included chicken patties, mashed potatoes, green peas, fruit salad, rolls, whipped cream jelly, cake and coffee, peanuts and pop-corn. The table decorations were of red and white.

Miss Jennie H. Hincheliff presided at the after dinner exercises and a program was rendered consisting of selections by the "Sympathy" orchestra; dances, vocal solos by Mrs. Fairweather and Miss Mary Caldwell, and a reading by Miss Minerva Ramsdell. Mrs. Kerr Sparks was a very efficient accompanist.

The members of the orchestra: Misses Mary Caldwell, director; Jean F. Dunlap, Agnes Thin, Jennie Valentine, Isabel Sherriff, M. Bissett, Kitty Bicknell, Annie Page and Mrs. Margaret Fairweather.

Sthetic Sisters: Miss Sadie McElish, Miss Annie Ness, Miss Elta Brown, Miss Margaret Haddon.

Dancing Dolls: Misses Annie Ness, Margaret Haddon, Elta Brown and Sadie Sherriff.

Nightingale troupe, Miss Annie Page, Jennie Valentine, Agnes Thin.

The members of the banquet committee were Miss Grace Lake, chairman; Mrs. Jean Wood, Misses Agnes Stewart, Annie Ness, Elta Brown, Ivy Hackney; entertainment committee, Mrs. Margaret Fairweather, Misses Mary W. Smith, Minerva Ramsdell and Mary Allen.

The affair was one of the most successful ever held by the class.

The program was as follows:

Selection — Sympathy Orchestra
Solo Dance — Sthetic Sisters
Solo: "Low Back Car"

"Dear Little Shamrock"
Miss Mary Caldwell

Reading — Miss Minerva Ramsdell
Selection — "Listen to the Mocking Bird"

Nightingale Troupe
Soprano Solo — "My Ain Folk"

Mrs. Margaret Fairweather
Exhibition by Dancing Dolls
Selection — Sympathy Orchestra

Briggs-Allen School Graduation

The graduating exercises of the Briggs-Allen school were held in the Parish house of Christ church on Thursday morning, with a large attendance of relatives and invited guests present.

The program consisted of music, recitations, games by the children of the lower grades and essays by the members of the graduating class.

Prizes for the year were presented by Mrs. Amy E. Briggs, principal of the School, and she also presented the diplomas to the graduating class.

The program which was especially interesting and finely executed, was as follows:

French Song	Senior Girls
Harp	Elizabeth Read
Essay "The Girl Scouts"	Elizabeth Eaton
History	Francis Flagg
Poem	Sibyl Kidder
Prophecy	Elizabeth Read
Address to Undergraduates	Sylvia Vaughan
Awarding of Prizes	Mrs. Briggs
Presentation of Diplomas	Mrs. Briggs
Games	I-VI Grades
Poem	Olga Harris
Play "The Graduation of any Child"	VI-VIII Grades

Busy Days for Firemen

Five fire alarms was the record for Wednesday; one a serious brush fire, three chimney fires, and a fire on the Main street bridge. The alarms were given as follows:

Box 28. Chimney fire at the house of Ellen McAvoy of Oak street, in Ballardvale.

Still alarm. Chimney fire at the house of James Gillespie at 54 High street.

Box 62. Serious fire on land owned by George Pillsbury in which 100 cords of wood, cut and corded, were destroyed.

Box 4. Fire at railroad bridge on Main street.

Still alarm. Chimney fire at house on Pearson street.

On Thursday an alarm from box 4 at half past ten called the department to a Ford truck belonging to W. L. Farwell of Tewksbury, used for delivering milk, which was on fire on Bellevue road, West Andover.

At half past eleven an alarm was again given for the Pillsbury fire.

Miscellaneous Shower

The Girls' Friendly society of Christ church held a picnic at Rabbit's pond Monday night. A basket lunch was enjoyed, after which the party adjourned to the home of Miss Phyllis Cunningham on Punchard avenue, where a surprise miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Amy Gilliard, one of the members, in honor of her coming marriage to Irving Morton of Medford.

Miss Gilliard was completely surprised but thanked the members for their many useful and beautiful gifts. The evening was pleasantly spent in games and musical selections were rendered.

Abbot Academy Notes

Although school closed officially on June 7, several College Preparatory Seniors have returned to study during the days intervening before entrance examinations.

The Honor roll for the second semester, ending June 1921, is as follows: Katharine Knight, Elizabeth McClellan, 91 per cent; Helen Norpell, 90 per cent; Lora Barber, Marion Cleveland, Elizabeth Flagg, Gertrude Franklin, Juliet Haskell, Dorothy King, Elizabeth MacPherran, Elizabeth McDougall, Carol Perrin, Miriam Sweeney, Agnes Titcomb, Mary Williams, 88 per cent.

A Message for the Man of the Family

STAY at home some Monday morning and get acquainted with wash-day. Rub and scrub and wring and lift scores of heavy, steaming pieces.

Wrestle with wash boilers filled with boiling water. Stoop and stretch and bend until back and arms are breaking.

Then, perhaps, you'll understand why mother is not looking so well this summer.

And you'll be glad to know that you can relieve mother of all this toil by having us do your family washing.

We'll wash everything so carefully that even the most critical can't complain, and we'll return your bundle with only a few light pieces left for mother to iron.

Try it next week. She'll feel ever so much better, and you will too. Just phone for our driver.

Last of Series of Talks on Free Masonry

St. Matthew's lodge, A. F. and A. M., held a smoke talk in Masonic hall Monday evening and many brethren were present to hear the third of a series of talks on Free Masonry by William Odlin of this town.

Mr. Odlin gave a very comprehensive account of the origin of free masons and went back to very early times, showing that the craft had been in existence for nearly 4000 years. It was a very instructive talk and the members of the lodge greatly enjoyed Attorney Odlin's presentation of the subject.

Vocal selections were rendered by Henry Fairweather, and readings were given by Perley F. Gilbert. Community singing was led by Fred G. Cheney.

St. Matthew's orchestra, Dr. A. E. Hulme, cornet and leader; Charles T. Gilliard, violin; Philip Louis, cello, and James P. Christie, piano, gave a concert program and their selections were as follows:

March "Under the Double Eagle," Wagner; March, Under the Double Eagle, Wagner; Rose Dreams, L. Albert; Whispering (Fox Trot), Schenberg; I Never Knew, Trinkaus; Romance of the Rose, Herman; Le Chevalier Breton, Herman.

At the close, refreshments were served by caterer Thomas E. Rhodes.

Rousing Celebration for the Fourth

Plans for a rousing community celebration for July Fourth to be held under the auspices of the American Legion were made at the meeting of the local post held Tuesday evening. Solicitors will canvass the town for small subscriptions and tags will be sold to help defray the expenses of the celebration. The success of future celebrations in Andover will depend largely upon the support which is given the Legion men who are working unceasingly in an endeavor to give Andover one of the greatest Fourth of July celebrations ever held.

The celebration will start the night before the Fourth with a bonfire. At 6 o'clock Fourth of July morning the town will be treated to the spectacle of a "horribles" parade, such as has not been seen in Andover for many years. Prizes will be awarded to the most horrible, the best antique, and the best local hits in the parade. The prizes will be $20, $10, and $5.

At 9:30 the sports will commence. The sport events will include a Marathon race, tug of war, three-legged races, potato race, greased pig contest and sack races. Valuable prizes will be awarded to the winners of the various events and the prizes will be announced later. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon a baseball game will be played. The prize to the winner will be $25. A band concert will be held in the evening from 8 to 10:30.

A feature of the sport events will be five-a-side soccer games in which teams representing Smith and Dove, Tyler Rubber Co., Marland Mills, and Andover post No. 8, A. L., will participate. This event will be in charge of Alex. Gibson.

P. E. Wilson is general chairman in charge of the celebration and he will be assisted by an efficient corps of workers. The chairman of the sub-committees in charge of the various activities includes: Bonfire, Alexander Gibson; horribles parade, P. E. Wilson; sports, Clarence Smalley; baseball, George Killackey; music, Douglas Hutcheson; tickets, Frank P. Markey; publicity, John P. S. Doherty.

Military Funeral to be Held Saturday

A full military funeral in charge of Andover Post 8, American Legion, will be accorded John Howard Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Baker of Barnard street. Services conducted by Rev. Markham W. Stackpole, who was his chaplain overseas, assisted by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, his former pastor, will be held in the South church, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

The funeral escort will form at the Town hall at 1:15 p.m. and line of march will leave the Baker residence, Barnard street, promptly at 1:30 p.m. Members of the Legion and other former service men are urged to turn out in uniform, if possible. Societies, fraternal and other organizations are urged to join the funeral cortege and form on Park street at 1:15 p.m. The names of such organizations should be sent in to Commander Bartlett H. Hayes, telephone Andover 233.

Will any generous persons who are willing to provide automobiles to transport Legion men to Lowell after the service at the South church please notify Bartlett H. Hayes?

The body of Private Baker, which had been expected for two weeks, arrived in Andover from France on Wednesday.

He was a member of Battery F, 102nd F. A., 26th Division, and fought through the war with his unit. He contracted a cold late in December, 1918, which developed into pneumonia, and he died in a French hospital, Jan. 4, 1919.

Graduated as Nurse

Miss Theresa Remmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus C. Remmes of Woodland road, was a member of the graduating class of nurses at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Brighton.

Miss Remmes graduated from Pundchard High in 1918 and took the three-year course at St. Elizabeth's hospital. She received her B. N. and stood high in her class. She is now at her home on Woodland road, caring for her father, who is critically ill.

Shawsheen Garage Opened

The latest building to be completed in Shawsheen village is the garage on Main street opposite the post office building, which opened for business last Saturday under the management of Carl H. Stevens of Shawsheen village.

The garage, which is two stories high, is built of reinforced concrete, absolutely fireproof, and has accommodation for seventy cars. A complete sprinkler system has been installed as an additional safeguard. The Main street entrance (the second floor) is approached by wide cement driveways with an island in the center with gasoline supply pumps. A ladies' waiting room, furnished in an artistic manner, is one of the features of the new garage, and nothing will be left undone to provide for the convenience and service of patrons.

The service entrance is on the ground floor on Haverhill street, which is on a much lower level than Main street. The service division is modern in its equipment with lathes and drilling machines and every detail is complete. There are two large storage tanks of 1000 gallons each, with automatic pumps in the basement. A full line of accessories of every kind will be carried.

The architects for the garage were Adden and Parker, who also designed the post office building and the Balmoral Spa. It was built by the Turner Construction company.

Punchard Notes

Bartlett H. Hayes, commander of Andover Post 8 American Legion, spoke to the boys in the school hall on Tuesday morning about the citizens' military training camps, known as the red, white and blue camps. The purpose of these camps is to perpetuate the interest of the young men of the United States in the importance of military training both as an asset in the problem of national defense and as a benefit to the individual; to bring together young men of high type from the states of the First Army Corps Area on a basis of equality under the most favorable conditions of outdoor life; to develop a sense of national unity and to teach the responsibility of true American citizenship. All expenses will be paid by the War Department. The camp will be held at Camp Devens for one month, August 1st to August 31st.

The prize offered by Dr. E. C. Conroy for the best business letter written under certain conditions by a pupil of the commercial department of the Punchard school was awarded to Miss Honora Cronin. The letters were submitted to Myron E. Gutterson, of the board of trustees, who chose Miss Cronin's as the best.

Dr. Conroy is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Gutterson commending the excellence of the letters as well as Dr. Conroy's interest in arranging the contest to stimulate the pupils' interest in their work. Dr. Conroy is pleased with the response made by the competitors and intends to arrange similar contests another year.

Christ Church Notes

Ninety per cent of the Church School was present at the closing session on Sunday last. The work will be resumed on September 18.

The various guilds have ceased to meet for the summer at regular meetings, though the Woman's Guild is doing Red Cross work at home, and the Altar Guild is doing its duty at the Church services. Flowers for the altar will be welcome during the summer.

The annual choir admission service will take place on Sunday morning, June 26th. In July the choir boys and men go for a week to Camp William Lawrence near Gloucester.

Lawrence General Hospital

It is time for Andover's annual contribution to the Lawrence General Hospital. At present we have a very small number of contributors to a very big need.

Are there not some others who are interested and who would be glad to help? Any sum from $1.00 to $50. will be most welcome and may be sent to Mrs. M. W. Stackpole.

Obituary

MRS. EZRA H. VALPEY

Mrs. Adelaide Mayberry Valpey, wife of Ezra H. Valpey, died at her home, 13 Summer street, early Tuesday morning. She had been in failing health for four years.

Mrs. Valpey was born in Bridgeton, Me., on December 3, 1842, and when twelve years of age came to make her home in Andover. She attended the public schools and the Punchard Free school, being a member of the class of 1859, the first class ever graduated.

She was married to Ezra H. Valpey, on January 24, 1870, by Rev. Charles Smith, at that time pastor of the South church. Last year Mr. and Mrs. Valpey observed their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Valpey was a member of the South Congregational church, where she was a constant attendant until her health failed. Mrs. Valpey was a home loving woman and centered all her attentions there. She is survived by her husband, Ezra H. Valpey, who recently retired after conducting the Valpey Bros. market on Main street for half a century, and by one daughter, Edith.

Funeral services conducted by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow were held yesterday afternoon at the late home. The bearers were Frank D. Valpey, Frank D. R. Valpey, George T. Abbott and Frederick E. Cheever.

Interment was in Christ Church cemetery.

WEST PARISH

Charles Jameson of Argilla road is again confined to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lewis of Lowell street visited Mrs. Elizabeth M. Lewis at Waltham, Sunday.

Mrs. William B. Corliss and daughters Helen and Wilma, are spending their vacation in Richford, Vt.

Mrs. Quincy Foster of Lowell was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ida F. Shaw of Osgood District, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ida Shaw of Blanchard street visited her sister Mrs. Frank Harrington of Grove street, Methuen, the early part of this week.

Granville Cutler and family attended the graduation exercises at Mount Holyoke College. Dorothy B. Cutler graduated with honors.

The L-P Canning Club will hold its first meeting Tuesday afternoon at 2.45 at the Stove School. Helen Lewis, Essex Aggie '20, will be the Club leader.

Friday afternoon, June 24, will be Children's afternoon at Andover Grange Hall. Mrs. Chester D. Abbott has the affair in charge. All grangers' children are invited, and a good time is promised.

The Lafolat Club will meet at Mrs. Herbert P. Carter's on Tuesday evening, and from there start for a hike, if the weather is pleasant, otherwise the meeting will be held with Agnes Kidd, Lincoln street.

Box 62 rang Wednesday afternoon for a fire in Pillsbury's woods, Blanchard street. It is believed the fire started from a cigarette carelessly thrown into the dry brush by the roadside. A large amount of cord wood ready for market was destroyed and quite an area of woodland was burned over. On Thursday morning the fire broke out afresh, but was soon brought under control.

Mark the date, August 17, on your calendars in red ink, for it is planned on that date to hold the annual summer field meeting of Essex County and Chesham Granges at the County School Hathorne. Those who attended last year will not want to miss this day of days for Grangers and those who have not attended before have a real pleasure in store, for the program promises to be even better than before. Fathers and mothers are invited to bring their families, as provision is to be made to care for the children so that the parents may attend all the lectures and exhibits.

Baptist Church

It was a lovely Children's Day, and a beautiful concert was given in the Baptist church in the evening. Flowers of the field and human flowers of the home were there in abundance. The program opened by all singing "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and all the songs followed the theme of the emblematic selection. Like a mass of blossoms stood the dear little primary children, speaking and singing of shining for Jesus, three of them holding tiny glowing candles.

After "Coronation" was sung, Perley Gilbert presented certificates to some new cradle roll members (or their relatives), and to those promoted to the primary department.

Mr. Gilbert spoke of Jesus, our King, the only one worthy to wear a crown, that for Him Christians carry the Gospel to all lands, using many things, one to be shown in the exercise. To get into the missionary spirit part of "From Greenland's icy mountains" was sung.

Scripture readings were given by two girls, turning attention to those "that go down to the sea in ships." Hymns were sung, showing Christ as the Master of the sea calling people to follow Him. Mr. Gilbert responded by saying, "It is the call of the Cross. Our Captain calls us to service. Are we ready? Paul and many others obeyed. We will obey by building a ship and sending it laden to the missionaries."

Then followed a very impressive exercise. A master builder called out twelve young sailors to build the ship. They brought in piece after piece, to the stirring strains of "To the work, to the work," and other fitting Gospel hymns. Each boy told the meaning of his part, from the keel, truthfulness, to the sails, aspirations, and the rudder, conscience. Soon the vessel stood complete on its ways, all sail set for the voyage. As the sailors stood at attention, a little flag, speaking of patriotism, was placed on the mast and a beautiful large American flag was brought to the front. The builders saluted and pledged allegiance to it, and the audience rose while Miss Elaine Wetterburg sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." A great white flag with a red cross on it was brought to the right of the platform to show that the gallant ship was a Christian missionary boat. That was saluted, and allegiance pledged to it and to the Saviour for whose Kingdom it stands. "Fling Out the Banner" was sung by the choir, then the pilot, the cross of Jesus, and the ship's chart, the Bible, were placed on the deck, with appropriate words and songs.

Now the ship was ready for the cargo and the children trooped up and dropped their offerings on the deck, as a tribute to Christ, to help send the good news of the Saviour's love to all men. A young girl recited "Entering Port." Several girls in white took their stand near and ahead of the ship. As the lights were turned out, the choir began to sing, "Let the lower lights be burning" and the girls held up twinkling flashlights, while the Gospel ship sailed slowly out of the harbor.

Every part of the program was carried out delightfully, the beautiful selection leaving lasting impression on the minds of all. After the fuchsia that edged the platform had been distributed to the smiling primary children the happy service closed.

Big Double Circus has Vast Program

The announcement that the far-famed Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows are to exhibit at Lowell, Friday, June 24th, has aroused no end of interest. It would seem as though practically all the youngsters and grown-ups in this section were planning to attend.

Twice each day for almost two months New York's great Madison Square Garden was packed with those who thronged to see this biggest program in circus history. They saw scores of the jungle's most ferocious beasts, subjugated to such a degree, that these beautiful animals leaped to and rode on the backs of elephants and horses, jumped through hoops of fire, opened their mouths that their men and women trainers might lay their heads and hands inside them, or leaped from pedestal to pedestal like trained dogs. And these marvelous dumb actors are all on tour with the great double circus. The four immense set arenas in which they perform are set up in the mammoth main tent. There is no additional charge—girth of the world in which he lives and to which he is to minister, and experiencing in his own soul the grace of that Living God in whose presence life never becomes a cell, but a growing and a glorious satisfaction!

PHILLIPS COMMENCEMENT

You are like Paracelsus today, you are facing the unknown, you are going to meet the unexpected. What are the arrows in the quiver which you propose to put upon the bowstring of your life and shoot? Remember what Paracelsus said, "I go to prove my soul; I see my way as birds their trackless way. I shall arrive. What time, what portion hence I know not; but as God sends His rain today, and blinding fire ball, sleet and driving snow, at some time, in God's time, I shall arrive. God guide me, and the bird. In God's good time."

The boys grew. God grant that you may grow Godward, and not earthward, in these precarious days, for the sake of which you have come to the King. Let us pray.

Help us, our Heavenly Father, that the real things of life may uncover themselves to our soul now in life's morning, that we may regard Thee as a partner in the concerns of our lives, and find our quickest joy, and our heartiest laughter, and our most delightful recreation, and our most eager aspiration, and our most monotonous toil, and our most essential patience, all refined and quickened and ennobled by that relationship which we sustain to Thee, by virtue of which we know that we are not of the earth earthy, but that by our birthright we are princes of God. Give us grace at this moment to pledge Thee that we will be true to the high calling wherewith we are called. Send us out to the waiting tomorrow with the confidence which belongs to those who know in whom they have believed. We ask it in Christ's name. Amen.

Me-o-my, how you'll take to a pipe—and P. A.!

Before you're a day older you want to let the idea slip under your hat that this is the open season to start something with a joy's jimmy pipe—and some Prince Albert!

Because, a pipe packed with Prince Albert satisfies a man as he was never satisfied before—and keeps him satisfied! And, you can prove it! Why—P. A.'s flavor and fragrance and coolness and its freedom from bite and parch (cut out by our exclusive patented process) are a revelation to the man who never could get acquainted with a pipe! P. A. has made a pipe a thing of joy to four men where one was smoked before!

Ever roll up a cigarette with Prince Albert? Man, man—but you've got a party coming your way! Talk about a cigarette smoke; we tell you it's a peach!

Prince Albert is sold in tatty red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tins, handsome and in the pound crystal glass tins and in the tins with a sponge melonier top.

"The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse"

The photoplay visualization of Vicente Ibanez' immortal story, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which is now in its second month at the Tremont Temple, Boston, is proving the greatest cinema sensation this country has ever known. This is indeed a broad statement when considering the mighty film productions that have worn this claim hitherto. But its verity remains unquestioned through the reception accorded it not only in Boston but in the great cities of the country.

Ibanez burst forth upon the amazed world by his literary achievement when "The Four Horsemen" appeared in book form. Its reception by the reading world was in every respect a major sensation. Every country contributed to the making of this sensation, it having been translated into six languages, and it is estimated that more than 20,000,000 people have read this story. In this way the book furnishes the highest mark in literary history.

Its story was drama of a most magnificent type. But like all masterpieces, it had more than sheer dramatic incident to commend it. There was character drawing of the quality of genius, and in addition there was a humanness which is commonly given that technical term, psychology. This trinity of attributes gave it lasting quality as well as elevating it to the rank of one of the greatest books ever written.

When it is said that the photoplay adaptation preserves intact the spiritual theme, character and drama of the original it is an estimate that stamps it as the greatest photoplay in the world. Nay, more, when it can truthfully be said that this screen translation magnifies these properties through the magic of the camera, then there can be no doubt in the most carping mind that here is the supreme achievement in photoplays. New Englanders have been realizing this as is testified through the fact that its presentations at Tremont Temple have met with a response in attendance exceeding that of any photoplay ever presented.

The showings are given twice daily, at 2.00 and 8.00 P. M. Seats are reserved and may be procured in advance.

Decoration Day Notes

I saw Tuesday in the "Transcript": "A memorial service for the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs who have died during the past year, will be held by the five Jamaica Plain lodges at St. Paul's Universalist Church, Jamaica Plain, Monday evening, June 6th."

So I wonder why some of the Odd Fellows of Andover pulled our flags from our standards Decoration morning, compelling the Grand Army to send to town to get more. Of course it is not right to lay the blame on the whole order, but we hold Decoration Day solid for war men, and while it is nice to see all the lots decorated with flowers, it does not seem quite right to take markers off so as to insure a deceased Odd Fellow's grave to be marked with a basket. I know this was done on Decoration Day, as I heard the order to get new flags. I understand a late state law forbids the use of flags on graves save war men on that day and would be glad to see it published if our representative can secure a copy to be printed in the Townsman.

It was pleasing to see that the coconut nuisance was somewhat abated and the time may come when the trustees of the South yard can have the funds for an hour's good work for a special police force to keep the monuments free from the juice and shells of this delightful "viand" once praised by some friend in the Decorations notes. I got my nut ready as it had a fine monkey's face to saw off and forget to tap it, but the last note of all distresses me most.

Poor Roger, who has lost all but his brook around our premises! He wants to know who owns that lot up town with the gate fallen away and a shabby rail fence enclosing the premises. When I told him it was our enterprising citizen, William Wood, who had done so much at Shawheen Village, he was appalled. "Did this gentleman ever visit his lot?" "I do not know, Roger." Suppose we call his attention to the exhibition. If he will put up a neat wire net fence, I will be one to help plant vines and scarlet runners around it, as they used to do on the road to Lawrence. Clematis, woodbine, Aristolochia and many other woods things would make a thing of beauty for our empty lot so conspicuous in its neglect now.

Lincoln Brothers' Circus in Andover

Lincoln brothers' circus gave two performances on Monday, its tents being set up in the field recently owned by the Pasho estate on Summer street. A street parade was held at noon.

The show consisted of acts by trained ponies, a contortionist, tumbler, trapeze artists, a tight-rope walker and clowns. At the evening performance all the seats were filled and many children sat on the grass.

Fourth of July Celebration

A public meeting was held in the Community rooms last Saturday evening to talk over plans for a celebration on July 4.

It was decided to hold one, and committees were appointed to make plans. The committee consists of Edward Davis, John Platt, Darwin Stark, William Steed, John Mason, Sr., Mrs. Amos Loomer, Mrs. Louis Buck, Mildred Buck, Gertrude Clark, Francis Riley, Edwin W. Brown, Harry Trow, and C. E. Wintringham.

The above committee then held a meeting and elected the following—Chairman, Edward Davis; secretary, Francis Riley; treasurer, C. E. Wintringham. After this the following chairmen were appointed: soliciting, John Platt; band, William Steed, assisted by John Mason and Darwin Stark; sports, E. W. Brown; tags, Mrs. Amos Loomer. It was voted that the committees could add any names to the list to assist them in any way.

On Monday evening the committee again met in the community room and appointed collectors. The town has been divided into sections as follows: Oak street, Clark road and Center street from the Engine house to Tewksbury street; solicitor, Darwin Stark. Tewksbury street from the R. R. crossing and Chester street, John Mason, Sr. River street and Dale street, William Steed. Andover street from the R. R. crossing and High street, Francis Riley. Marlard street and Center street from Tewksbury street up, Edward Davis. Andover street from the crossing to the Andover and Ballardvale line, John Platt.

Miss Gertrude Clark was appointed to take charge of the decorating of the band stand.

A fine program has been arranged, which will be pleasing to young and old.

Phillips Andover 3; Exeter 1

Playing the best game of the season, Andover triumphed over Exeter Saturday on the Plimpton playing fields, Exeter, 3-1, in one of the most exciting games of the long series between the two schools. It was a decided surprise to the Exonians who were celebrating Alumni day and were all primed for a big night.

The Andover team played a wonderful game. They made the most of their chances to score and by chalking up a couple of runs in the opening inning fairly swept the Exeter team off their feet and the Red and Gray went down to defeat when they expected a sure victory.

Andover earned its victory. It played baseball from start to finish; a double play was just missed by a hair in ending the game. In the fourth and sixth innings when things looked bad, the whole team, with Harry Christie from behind the plate shouting words of encouragement, responded and sent Exeter back scores. It was a wonderful exhibition of pitching by Dave Williams and fielding by his teammates, and it spelled victory for Andover.

A roving celebration with a torch-light parade, speeches and a bonfire celebrated the great victory for Andover, the first celebration for a baseball victory since 1912.

More than 1000 acres of wheat are now sown annually in Massachusetts, ten times the wheat acreage of the State in 1900. Spring wheat should be sown as early in the spring as it is possible to get the seed bed ready. Marquis and Fife seem to be the varieties best adapted to Massachusetts.

Betsy Ross Pow-Wow

Nearly seventy boys had a great time Wednesday afternoon at the Betsy Ross Pow-Wow given by Jesse West, manager of the F. E. Gray store, at Pumps pond, where for two hours the youngsters were kept busy with a long list of sports.

The boys assembled at the store at 4:15 and marched in good order to Pumps by the way of Essex, Central, Phillips and Woburn streets. Ample refreshments were served by Mr. West assisted by Henry Otis and William Simeone. After three hours of fun the boys reluctantly returned home, after being promised another outing during the summer.

The winners were as follows: Tug of war, first section, 10-a-side, won by W. McCarthy, German, Gibson, Coyle, Moore, Ruxton, Goghlan, Keefe, Fettes, McLaughlin.

Second section, 10-a-side, won by John Tammany, Valentine, Urban, Robertson, Murphy, Kelly, Green, White, Simeone, McCarthy.

Three-legged race, won by W. Hyde and Henderson.

120-yard relay race, won by Hyde, Holden, Skee, Simeone.

Running broad jump, won by Jas. Ruxton.

Pair of Betsy Ross stilts were won by William Currie, who drew the lucky number.
